

SPEECH OF THE CHIEF INTERNAL AUDITOR DURING A WORKSHOP ON RISK MANAGEMENT & TEAM BUILDING AT CCU ON 17TH – 18TH MAY 2012

Our facilitators and all members of the Internal Audit department Good Morning!

I welcome you all to today's training on Risk Management and Team Building.

We all know that Risk Management is an important area of concern in modern organizations. This is because there are many risks facing organizations. Risks pose a threat of making organizations not to meet their objectives. It behoves competent managers to adopt a strategy of managing those risks.

The University of Nairobi like all other organizations also faces many risks which call for a strategy to identify and manage them.

That is why we have facilitators to take us through Enterprise Risk management.

We auditors work in an environment where we have to co-operate and collaborate both with fellow auditors, finance staff, procurement staff and other sections and members of staff. It is important that we improve our skills of working in them so that we can be effective within our teams.

That is why we have lined up facilitators to take us through team building.

The University Management agreed to fund this training as a demonstration of its continued support to the department to enable it perform at its best. We are grateful for that.

I challenge you members that you utilize this training fully by participating in asking questions and giving suggestions in a way that will help us all add value when we go back to our work stations.

I wish to declare that the training is now open.

Thank you.
